THE BICYCLE AT CHURCH.

Some churches invite the attendance of bicyclers by preparing a receptacle where their wheels may be hung for the service, and announcing the same from the pulpit, which is a good idea, as they could not well roll them down the aisles and stand them against the new doors or hand them over to the sexton for safekeeping. The cyclists are a numerous and expanding body, and they are to a great extent young and in the fullest vigor of the law, and guidance which the church affords them. Nothing could be more suitable, therefore, than this mode of invitation to church services, and the care of their vehicles, and as the bicycles have come to stay, and promise to be almost universally employed, a modification of church architecture may take place to make room for them.
